"WINGS OVER JORDAN" FAMOUS NEGRO CHOIR COMING TO ELBA

Back in 1937, Rev. Glynn T. Settle, pastor of Bethsemane Baptist Church in Cleveland, Ohio, listened to his choir sing their praise of the Lord and declare their faith in good-will and brotherhood.

"Why," he wondered, "can't we tell these things to the world and show people of different races and creeds that the American Negro is a worthy, hard-working citizen of this free land?" And so was born the world-famous WINGS OVER JORDAN choir which will be heard on January 30, 1947, at the Elba Colored School auditorium by arrangements made with the Stanford Zucker Agency of New York. Two concerts will be given that evening and special arrangements are being made for white people who wish to hear these great singers.

AFTER REHEARSAL PARTY GIVEN FOR BRIDAL COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Clark entertained Saturday evening at an after-rehearsal party honoring Miss Clark and Mr. Boyd, whose marriage took place Sunday at the Baptist church. The families, out-of-town guests and the coterie who were the wedding attendants were assembled. The rooms were decorated with gladioli, narcissi and chrysanthemums. Burning tapers lent additional charm.

The lace covered party table held for its centerpiece a large silver bowl in which were massed white carnations and snapdragons. A delicious refreshment course was served. The bride-elect was charming in a party skirt and Paisley blouse.

WM. EDWARD JOHNSON DIED LAST WEDNESDAY; FUNERAL HELD FRIDAY

Funeral services for William Edward Johnson, farmer of Bullock, who died at the home of his father in the Stinson Cross Roads community on December 25 from a gunshot wound, were held Friday at Antioch church.

Several conflicting reports of the incident caused state and county officers to start an investigation, including an autopsy, and so far as we were able to learn Tuesday no definite conclusions had been reached.

Mr. Johnson is survived by his wife, Mrs. Gladys Johnson; a son, John Henry Johnson; a brother, Madison Johnson. Rev. Barker officiated at the funeral and burial, with Hayes in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. J. H. Amos visited Mr. and Mrs. George Morrow and family in Graceville, Fla., and Mrs. L. E. Hay in Dothanville, Ga., during the Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Alford and Miss Suzanne Alford, of Chipley, Fla., were guests of Mrs. Alford's mother, Mrs. J. J. Farris and other relatives in Elba Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Prude Crook visited Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tiller in Abbeville while visiting in Elba. They left for their home in San Diego last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Farris and children visited Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Mitchell, Sr., in Montgomery during the holiday season.

Mr. and Braxton Ingram, of Marianna, Fla., were in Elba during the Yule season.

Welcome

When you awaken on New Year's morning may you awaken not only to a day of happiness, but to a whole year of happy days. We welcome the New Year and take this opportunity to greet all our friends.

Garrett Motor Co.

Isso came running out to the sidewalk.

It again. I don't think Isso'll let him stand outside his store ringing that bell and selling ice cream. But just to make sure he won't let him stay, we're all going to help ourselves to Isso's fruit baskets on the run. Isso won't let him stay after that.

Everything worked out as planned. Rolly had just taken his place before the Italian's little fruit store and was waiting for a customer when Soapy and his gang swooped around the corner. They helped themselves and scurried off.
Hidden, they watched the unhappy Isso. Saw him turn and approach Rolly, wringing his hands and gesticulating excitedly. But something was wrong. Rolly wasn't hurriedly pushing his cart away as he should have been. Instead, he was talking quietly to the little Italian. Soon he left the cart and went into the store with Isso. When he came out a few minutes later he calmly took his place beside his wagon again and was soon selling figs to the passers-by.

Soapy Mike shook his head. "I just don't get it," he said, mystified. Finally he decided to saunter back along the street. "Something's going on," he said anxiously. "I'll find out what."

Rolly was busily selling figs to three little girls. He pocketed the nickels and looked up at Soapy with a big grin. "It's a swell corner," he said happily.

Soapy nodded without enthusiasm.
He scraped his toe on the sidewalk, ill at ease. "Did—uh—Isso say it would be O.K. for you to stay here?" he asked.

"Yes, thanks to you and the gang," Rolly said. "And what's more, he's going to repay me the five dollars I gave you."

"But the fellows taking the fruit," Soapy burst out. "He knew you were one of us. Why didn't he run you off?"

"Oh," Rolly said quietly, "he was going to before I explained things to him. But now he wants me to stay."
"Well, I don't get it," Soapy exploded in disgust.

"It's really simple," Rolly said.
"Isso said your gang had been taking his fruit for a long time, so naturally he didn't want me to stay at first. But I told him how you kept your word about things. Then I explained about your system, and that did it!"

"System?" Mike repeated blankly. "Our system?"

"Of course! Isso will let me stay because, according to the system, none of your gang can come on this corner while I'm here. That way they won't be stealing Isso's fruit any more!"

The System

TRYING hard to swallow his four Rolly looked Soapy Mike in the eye almost. "You mean I have to pay you five dollars just so that I can sell ice cream bars on this street?"

Soapy Mike crossed his arms on his chest the way he'd seen it done in the movies, and did his best to look the way the toughest kid in the block ought to look. "That's exactly right! My gang decided we need a system if we're going to make any money selling figs here. They want me to figure one out and I have.
You got a nice wagon there, huh?"

Rolly nodded. "Yes." He wiped a bit of dust from the top of the neat white pushcart with the big chocolate-plaid ribbon bar dripping deliciously down the side. "But if I take a long time to sell, how do you get back the five dollars?"

"That's just the point," Soapy pointed out. "When you pay the five we'll give you a spot all your own.
None of the other fellows can go into your district."

"Well... all right," Rolly took out some crumpled bills and a handful of coins. "I'll only have fifteen cents left," he said slowly.

Soapy took the money with a grin and winked at the others. "Now you get the corner in front of Isso's fruit stand all for yourself," he said.

"Isso's?" Rolly breathed. "Gosh, that's a busy corner!"

"Sure," Mike nodded happily.
"Now you see what a system does!"

The gang watched Rolly push his cart swiftly down the street.

There was a sly grin on Soapy Mike's face. "O.K., fellows, we did it."

MISS SMITH AND MR. KOOMEN ARE WED IN WASHINGTON

The marriage of Miss Nellie Faye Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Smith, of Elba, to Mr. Martin John Koomen, of Rochester, N. Y., took place at the Congress Heights Methodist Church, Washington, D. C., on December 6 at 8 P. M., with the Rev. George L. Connor officiating.

The marriage vows were read by candle light, amidst palms and white chrysanthemums, gladioli and roses. Soft organ music was played by Mrs. Pearl Peabody and Miss Mary Louise Milkan sang, "O Promise Me," and "Because."

The bride, given away by her cousin, Mr. Harris Winston, wore a white broad-satin gown made in Grecian lines and a finger-length veil of illusion. She wore pearls, a gift from the groom.

Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. R. W.

and carried a cascade bou-quet of white roses, stephanotis and gardenias.

Miss Johnnie Durham, of Lubbock, Texas, maid of honor, wore a blue satin gown fashioned with a bustle back and carried American Beauty roses.

Dr. Jacob Koomen, of Rochester, N. Y., cousin of the groom, was best man and Mr. Donald Smith, of San Francisco, Calif., was usher.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harris Winston. After a wedding trip to points of interest in the East, the couple will make their home in Washington, D. C., where the groom holds a position with the Naval Research Laboratory as a physicist.
